2. The Collector of Bellary reports that as a result of inspection by the special staff it has been brought to notice that many wells and vaddu embankments for the construction of which loans were granted prior to fasli 1336 were not undertaken. He adds that in these cases the amounts were obviously misapplied and that summary recovery of the full amounts or of the unspent balances as the case may be has been ordered. The orders issued in G.O. No. Mis. 2430 Revenue, dated 15-10-1928 relate to loans granted in faslis 1336 and 1337. The Collector enquires whether the orders of summary recovery passed in the cases referred to by him should also be withdrawn. The Board therefore requests to be informed of the intentions of Government in the matter.

What do the entries in the remarks column mean? That in some cases every year since 1332, say, has been treated as dead? If this has been done on any scale no wonder we are collecting little of loan arrears in Bellary!

Please see H.P.C.'s remarks above. Under rule IX of the revised loan rules, the years in which the collection of loan instalments is suspended are treated as dead years, and all the remaining loan instalments are correspondingly postponed. From the statements submitted by the Board of Revenue, in the linked file, it was pointed out that in several villages in the Bellary taluk, (in which collection of loan instalments was suspended year after year) no recoveries have been made till now in respect of loans granted in fasles 1330 to 1333. Yet in these villages no amounts were shown as "arrears i.e., amounts which fell due for collection and which remained uncollected". The statements submitted by the Board in the linked file were returned to the Board with O.M. No 24496/28-33 8.4.29 for supplying additional information As the points referred to by HM at p/supra is being examined in the linked file, it is for orders whether a fresh reference should be made to the Board in this case
